Precautions concerning information given on package drawings

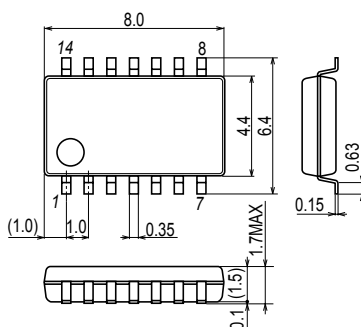

Basically, SANYO Semiconductor Company's packages are named and coded in compliance with JEITA regulations (ED-7303A), which stipulate the names and codes for integrated circuit packages. However, the names for our existing packages are still in use.

The dimensions given on this Web site are reference values (typical values) and are subject to change due to improvements and other factors.

Be sure to check the package dimensions on the delivery specifications at the design or delivery stage.
